

Young academics with a PhD degree will get the opportunity to process projects on their own authority or to support PhD, Master and Bachelor students. Like this, they can qualify for a continuing academic career either as a supervisor or for a management position in the industrial sector. Postdocs will receive adequate mentoring support from experienced scientists accompanying their scientific work. In addition to that, they regularly present their findings of research at national and international conferences. Vacant career opportunities can be found on this homepage.